

Making competent, objective financial advice accessible

Andrew Sloan is a member of the Garrett Planning Network, a nationwide network of independent, Fee-Only financial planners making competent, objective financial advice accessible to all people. As committed consumer advocates and Fee-Only client fiduciaries, Garrett Planning Network members take seriously their commitment to serving the public's best interests by making competent, commission-free financial planning and advice accessible to all people.

Many financial advisors accept clients only if they meet certain income and net worth requirements. However, the Garrett members believe that professional, objective financial advice is something all Americans can use to help achieve their financial goals. It is this belief that makes Bluegrass Financial Planning and the Garrett Planning Network proud to offer the same quality, professional advice to all clients, not just the affluent.

As a member of the Garrett Planning Network, we are able to utilize the collective wisdom of over 300 financial planning and allied professionals across the country. Advice may be provided on an hourly, Fee-Only basis, which means that clients pay only for the time an advisor works with or for them. Garrett members do not accept sales commissions or third-party compensation.

fi360 is a registered trademark of the University of Illinois at Chicago. All other trademarks are the property of their respective owners.